Tips for Training New Truss Designers

Finding good people for your truss design department is one thing, but training them to be top notch and productive as well as immersed in company culture is another. SBCA staff member, Joe Michels comes to the table with over 25 years of truss design and truss design department management. In this workshop, Joe will:

- Provide strategies for finding quality designers.
- Go through a typical training plan – long term and short term.
- Discuss ways to retain valuable designers once you have spent the resources to get them where you want them.
- Explore some of the great resources SBCA has available to assist with training.
